Meet 24-year-old Laurianne Melierre, lifestyle editor-in-chief at The O (the L'Obs magazine lifestyle supplement) who also hosts a radio show on France's Rinse FM. A lover of the 90s and Korean fashion, she's a pro when it comes to incorporating streetwear pieces into her work wardrobe. Pinning fingers at the ready...

Styled by Natalie Fadugba.

Monday

Like Laurianne, show up to your morning meetings in a tailored sleeveless blazer paired with SS16 workwear hero, striped palazzo trousers. Add a pair of fresh white mules for a chic and (v importantly) commute-friendly finish.

BEAUTY LOOK OF THE WEEK

Tuesday

Giving us a masterclass in proportion, the self-proclaimed sneakers addict paired her mint green New Balance with a midi skirt and neat cropped blazer. Laurianne's logo tee brings the colour – try yours tucked in for the office and knotted at the front for after-work drinks.

Wednesday

Ruffles are everywhere for SS16 and Laurianne couldn't resist: she teamed her dress with white sneakers, a cute oxblood mini backpack and a pastel overcoat. For a fresh finishing touch, add a brooch as a pretty reminder that you've made it to hump day!

Thursday

Spring is for layering, so ditch the jacket and go for a long-sleeved tee paired with a lace dress (colour blocking at its best). Laurianne adds black sneakers, bright white socks and a sophisticated cross-body bag to run from the office to the radio station hands free!

Friday

Cos nothing says #TGIF quite like a ruffle skirt and top. Layered with a long-sleeved printed tee for instant edge, Laurianne adds heeled boots, peeping white socks and a mini bag. And finally, her black cap is the perfect quirky finish. Give her a follow @laurianneme.
